Course Description:

This college-level course is an introduction to the United States national government and political system. The institutions and policies of the United States government will be considered in light of historical change, constitutional procedures, and comparative perspectives. The AP American Government curriculum covers the foundations of American democracy through the study of essential documents, the rights and obligations of American citizens, the unique roles and responsibilities of the three branches of government, an analysis of landmark U.S. Supreme Court interpretations, issues regarding campaigns and elections and a study of American foreign and domestic policy. This class will prepare you for the AP Exam in May. The second half of this course is dedicated to Honors Economics. This course is split between both Macro and Micro Economics. This class is not geared towards any specific AP Economics exam.
